The City is in the midst of a busy budget season. During the last several months, city management has worked to deliver a budget to City Council for consideration that meets both residents’ needs and Council priorities while also identifying and maintaining efficiencies. In a comparison of similar Texas cities, the City of Galveston has among the lowest administrative costs as a percentage of the operating budget at 3.73 percent. Public meetings for the budget began in June and will continue through August and September.

The City also anticipates taking two collective bargaining agreements to City Council in August. These are multi-year employment contracts for all public safety employees working for the City. We look forward to presenting two strong agreements to City Council that will benefit our employees and the taxpayers.

In other areas, work began this summer on a leak detection program using listening devices and ultrasonic microphones to identify where breaks are located in the pipelines. Identifying losses and repairing our water infrastructure is critical. Ultimately this analysis will enable us to pinpoint where repairs are needed and complete those repairs more efficiently. Repairing water infrastructure and securing our water needs is a top priority for the City.

Sincerely,
Brian Maxwell, City Manager
